AFTER A SLEEP OF TWENTY-SIX CENTURIES: SKELETON

Found in One of the Tombs That Have Been Uncovered by the Franco-American Expedition in Carthage.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

"CAN A MAID FORGET HER ORNAMENTS?" JEWELS OF SOLID GOLD
Found in the Tomb of a Girl at Utica. Including Large Rings Used to Decorate the Hair, a Finger Ring With a Delicately Carved Cameo, Medallion and Necklace of Finely Engraved Golden Beads Interspersed With Medals and Small Figures of Ivory.

MORE than twenty centuries have passed since Cato's slogan, "Carthago delenda est," was obeyed by the legions of Scipio Aemilianus, who razed the proud city to the ground and sowed its site with salt. Today it is once more in the public eye because of the treasures brought to light by the excavations carried on there by a Franco-American expedition. Contemporaneously, Count Byron de Prorok, in conjunction with Abbé Moulard, has unearthed finds of equal interest and value at Utica, twelve miles away, and a wealth of information has been gained concerning the mighty Punic civilization that once flourished in North Africa.

At the latter city the archaeologists have located and opened more than forty tombs of perhaps the sixth century, B. C., containing necklaces, bracelets, earrings and rings of solid gold.

CREATIONS OF THE POTTER'S THUMB: PUNIC AMPHORAE,
Found at Utica Near the So-Called Villa of Cato, Where Dwelt, It Is Believed, the Younger Cato, Who Committed Suicide, Despairing of the Republic After Caesar's Triumph.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

In addition, there were beautiful Egyptian scarabs, amulets, statuettes, ivory ornaments, iridescent perfume bottles, bronze mirrors and lamps of pottery. One tomb was that of a dancing girl, the outline of whose skeleton traced in its own dust was still apparent. With her had been buried her necklace of 150 golden stars separated by drops of gold, a gold ring with a Greek god cut in a cameo, a chain of amulets, gold earrings and perfume bottles. In one of the villas unearthed baby bottles were found with a smiling mother's face on each.

At Carthage more than 1,500 objects were found in the sanctuary of the goddess Tanit, to whom it was the custom to offer up human sacrifices. A single small field had 315 steles standing in place. These are thought to have been erected to commemorate sacrifices to the goddess over urns containing the bones of children or animals offered to her. Fully 800 of these urns have been found, mostly intact, and experts will be called in to determine which contain the bones of children. The site of the forum is now being uncovered and the work in progress is expected to throw a flood of light upon the history of the city that was the most bitter enemy and formidable rival of ancient Rome.

UNFORTUNATE occurrences to historic buildings and structures of the Middle Ages in the Old World practically prove that this is the "crumbling age," and demonstrate that many ancient edifices have reached the time when they can hold out no longer and need modern construction to preserve them for posterity.

The latest structure which threatens to succumb is the old Alcantara Bridge at Toledo, Spain, which spans the Tagus River. It is of Moorish origin, but the present structure dates from 1258, the time of Alfonso the Learned. It is the end of the bridge from which arises an old Moorish Tower which is in danger of collapse, and wooden timbers are now holding it in place until it can be completely restored. This bridge is defended at either end by an impressive gateway, and from it one gets the best idea of Toledo's strength against invaders.

At the present time Londoners are dismayed because St. Paul's Cathedral is going through its crumbling era and is undergoing repairs, as is Lincoln Cathedral in Northern England. And Italians are worrying because the Leaning Tower of Pisa is threatening to lean too far.

The Bride in Strictly Modern Garb By Margery Wells

A BRIDE must be picturesque and she must, at the same time, be up to the last word in fashion. Few girls wish to do the period thing with a bridal gown to make them look more picturesque than altogether fashionable. But the question of how to dress the bride in keeping with the mandates of an existing style is one that becomes a fresh problem every season.

This season, for the June bride, that most important bride of all, the skirt of her frock must be made short—Oh yes, extremely short—and the train must be a train none the less. The bride in the picture has achieved this aim in a clever combination of tulle and satin. The little tight dress is made of the latter material and it has flower petals of the same material arranged around the bottom of the skirt with two flat, white flowers made of silver gauze posed on one shoulder.

For the rest, her gown is beaded with crystal beads, which give it a sparkle and a shine that bring it right into the picture. The same little flower petals that deck the gown are used again in the long, flat train, which is made of satin, too. Then, over that is draped a quantity of filmy maline that rises to the making of a snowy cap held by a flaring brim of embroidery and lace. The strings of pearls that fall from the crown around the neck and over the shoulders are interestingly arranged to carry out the modern craze for differing lengths of pearls for necklaces.

Another bride-to-be in June has chosen for her dress one that is quite princess in style and fit. It has long sleeves reaching well over her hands and a neck that is decidedly high. For her train there is just one long, flat strip of the crêpe satin from which her gown is made, and there is no trimming whatsoever. Only the exquisite lines of the costume are there to make it notable. Of course, there is the maline veil—yards and yards of it—which casts a cloud of loveliness over the whole array, and there is the large bouquet which, with a perfect background of this character, has its own chance to count in the decorative scheme.

For bridesmaids' dresses they are using taffeta a great deal. And when it is not this puffy material, which is always bound to be picturesque, then it verges to another extreme and is chiffon. With both of these materials there is a wide range of choice as to color, and the delicacy of the toning is what makes the bridesmaid's dress an attractive thing to see.

One collection of bridesmaids for a forthcoming wedding will be dressed in many colors of pastel chiffon. The dresses are made very full, very short, with waving, fluffing portions on the skirts. And they have little or no trimming about them, for they are perfect as they are.

Another bride has chosen old lace for her wedding gown—a family possession it is, and makes for her a lovely traditional costume. Then she has elected to have her attendants wear pastel colorings of silk Spanish lace draped over foundations of chiffon. This promises to be one of the most beautiful weddings of the whole season.

The taffeta skirts have that attribute of fluffing out and making a ladylike, alluring line. All girls love them. They have, this season, tight bodices, no sleeves and skirts just as full as the art of the designer can make them. One of them is shown in the picture. It is done in pale yellow with a bit of silver cloth.

BEST BRAIN TEASERS WIN CASH PRIZES EVERY WEEK

FOR the best original contribution printed on this page each week a prize of $15 in cash will be awarded. For the next best contribution a prize of $10 will be awarded. For each additional contribution published on this page The Mid-Week Pictorial will pay $5.

Each contributor should state that to his best knowledge and belief his contribution has not hitherto been printed in its present form. Answers or solutions must accompany each contribution.

The contest is open to every one except employees of The New York Times Company, and it is not necessary to purchase a copy of The Mid-Week Pictorial, as the magazine may be inspected at any business office of The New York Times Company and at the many public libraries where it is on file.

The decisions of the Editor will be made largely on the originality and cleverness of the contribution, and in every case shall be final.

All contributions should be addressed to
THE SPHINX EDITOR, MID-WEEK PICTORIAL,
229 West 43d St., New York, N. Y.

4—Drawing.

Draw the above without taking your pencil from the paper or retracing a line.

—Five dollars awarded to George Hug, 535 Evergreen Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

5—Jacob's Ladder.

The primal is where Jacob was sent to get a wife. The final is a garden mentioned in the Bible. The rungs are four-letter words.

- 1—Stopper of a hole.
- 2—Evergreen herbaceous plant.
- 3—A fish.
- 4—Collide.
- 5—An interjection.
- 6—No one.
- 7—An interjection.
- 8—A girl's name.
- 9—Expression used in prayer.
- 10—Silent.

—Five dollars awarded to Mrs. Della Mills, South Point, Ohio.

Second Prize—Ten Dollars.

Won by Mrs. Grace Branthoover, Idaho Falls, Idaho.

6—Triple Acrostic.

The first and third words vertical are the names of States in the United States. These States are very dissimilar in climate. The fifth word vertical means "to compensate." Each horizontal word contains five letters.

- 1—A bone in the leg.
- 2—Unbound.
- 3—Possessed.
- 4—One who estimates.
- 5—Angry.
- 6—Slight depressions.
- 7—Accumulate.

7—Anagram.

My first is in cotton, but not in silk;
My second in chocolate, not in milk.
My third is in candy, but not in sweets;
My fourth is in warms, but not in heats.
My fifth is in Lilly, but not in May;
My sixth is in grasses, but not in hay.
My seventh is in Homer, but not in Poe;
My eighth is in gladness, but not in woe.
My ninth is in anger, but not in joy;
My tenth is in plaything, but not in toy.
My eleventh is in bracelet, but not in ring;
My whole is the name of a great French King.

—Five dollars awarded to Rhoda Krause, 1,253 Franklin Avenue, New York City.

8—Biblical Problem.

Subtract the number of years Adam lived from the number of years Noah lived.

Multiply the result by the number of books of the Bible written by Moses.

Subtract from this the number of sons Jacob had.

Subtract from this the number of books in the entire Bible.

Subtract from this the number of persons who entered the Ark.

Divide this by the number of times the Children of Israel compassed Jericho.

What is the answer?

—Five dollars awarded to Babe Gruman, 873 West Twenty-eighth Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

9—Hidden Words.

In the following letter find the names of fourteen objects found in and about the average kitchen:

Dear Sis: Just a line while we rest over Xmas in Katonah. We thought we saw Edwin downtown, but one is so apt to be mistaken. These chic haircuts alter the face too much. I wasn't able to lag, as Pop and Rob room here. I can't do or go as I please for that reason. You know how stubborn they are.

We had a masquerade party. May deemed her garb "Age." Candidly speaking, she looked the part. Must close. Hastily, MARY.

—Five dollars awarded to M. S. Wood, 262 South Fifth Avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

10—Tangram.

Here is the Sphinx of Egypt, with the big pyramid in the background, and in the foreground a camel—hump and all—lying down and chewing his cud. Can you construct them from your tangram blocks?

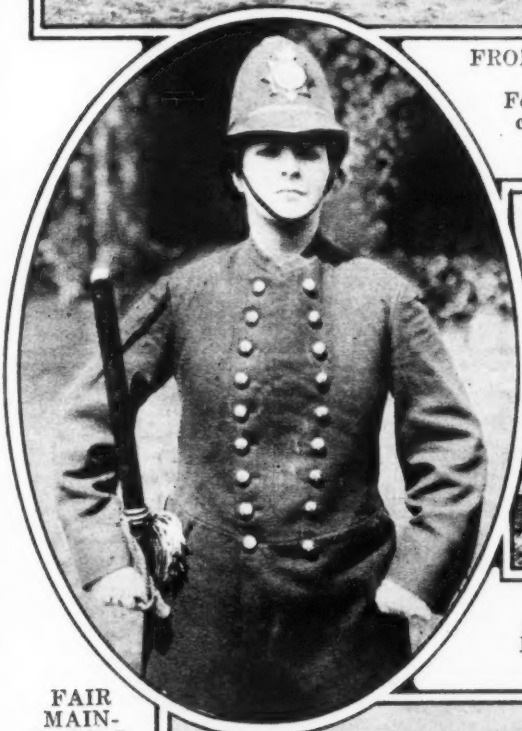

—Five dollars awarded to Pat Brady, Columbus College, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Answers to these "Brain Teasers" will be published next week. Answers to last week's appear on Page 25.

A BY-VOCATION OF THE CLOTH: THE REV. JAMES HOUGHTON of Junction City, Kan., With a Shawnee Rooster.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

PROOF that a preacher's proverbial liking for fried chicken is not all a matter of myth and legend is contained in the case of the Rev. James Houghton of Junction City, Kan., a regional Superintendent of the Universalist Church, who is not only a poultry fancier—he is the originator of a new breed of domestic fowl, developed through some thirty years of experimental breeding.

This new breed, which is called "Shawnee," has in its make-up the blood of several prominent strains, chiefly of the Brahmas, Leghorns and Pit Games. It thus represents a combination of the Asiatic, English and Mediterranean strains. The Asiatics are known for their size and sturdiness, the Mediterranean for their egg-laying ability, the English for their form of body and texture, and flavor of flesh, constituting a superior variety for broiling and roasting.

The Shawnees, it is claimed, possess the good qualities of all the types from which they were evolved. In beauty and color they are striking-looking fowls, and served for Sunday dinner they are declared to be par excellence.

The breeding of poultry might be said to be almost universal in appeal. Backyard flocks and poultry farms are everywhere. Yet, in the work of the Rev. Mr. Houghton, the small poulterer should find especial encouragement, because the Shawnee breed was originated and developed under backyard conditions.

of cleverness and facility, making the award of prizes difficult and the winning of them an honor.

The prizes this week, the last of the competition, go to two puzzles with the fewest blank spaces the editor has ever seen in a thirteen square. It seems hardly possible to make one with fewer blanks.

The puzzles also are quite all right in other respects and will well repay the time spent in solving them.

O-NIC-O CIGARETTES

—recommended by physicians

IT'S not cigarette smoking that's hurting you. It's the nicotine that does the damage. Nicotine is a harmful drug that adds nothing to the enjoyment of smoking. Cut out the nicotine and you've cut out the harm in smoking.

That is just what we have done for you in O-NIC-O cigarettes. For twenty-five years we've been experimenting to find a way to get the nicotine out of the tobacco without impairing its smoking qualities.

We've found it! No chemicals are used. Our method of treating tobacco removes the bulk of the nicotine—and nothing more. The flavor is left in. The aroma is still there. You get a real cigarette smoke that is indorsed and smoked by physicians the country over.

O-Nic-O cigarettes are a blend of the highest quality Turkish and Domestic tobaccos. They are super-mild and a delightful smoke. Send us $1 for a trial box of forty cigarettes or $2.50 for 100.

Order now, by the next mail.
LINCOLN & ULMER

OMAR KHAYYAM — Free

Pocket edition of the famous Rubaiyat, best of all books to dip into for a profound thought or a haunting line of Oriental poetry. Large, clear type, well bound in limp leather, stamped in gold. While the edition lasts, a copy of Omar—without extra charge—comes to you with each Shakespeare.

SEND NO MONEY

Take plenty of time to examine the Collier's Lakeside Shakespeare in your own home. If it does not far exceed your expectations, return it without charge or obligation.

in One Volume— Printed and Bound in America

Here is a photograph of the wonderful new American-made masterpiece; a single beautiful volume containing everything Shakespeare ever wrote!

For many months, master printers in the famous Lakeside Press have worked on this glorious book. With the achievements of Scottish and Oxford rivals to spur them (we have depended on these famous British Shakespeares in the past) our American experts have at last surpassed the foreign craftsman.

1312 pages in Clear, Readable Type
Weights only 8 ounces

Every man, woman, boy and girl should own this concise Shakespeare. Using India paper, thin and opaque, on which expensive encyclopedias and Bibles are printed, the Lakeside Press has put all Shakespeare's works—tragedies, comedies, historical plays, and sonnets—into this one beautiful little book. So skillfully bound it will fit your pocket, so flexible you can roll it up without injury!

Thousands of the imported volumes were sold by us for $6.50. Now, helped by keen buying of a carload of India paper, rid of ocean freights and customs charges, our American workmen have now not only a better book but a less expensive one. To share their saving with you, we offer

Special cash price of $5.00

JOHNSON JR.'S famous fictional creation, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," will become a "trail" in reality next month. His novel of that title, which drew the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia to the attention of millions of people, will become an actual trail which will be a part of the Great Lakes to the Ocean Highway.

This trail will be opened in the identical spot in Virginia where Mr. Fox's story was laid. It is a well-known fact that the late writer drew the characters for his novels from real life, and the Hales and Taliaferros, as well as other characters who have enacted rôles on his printed pages, will be on hand at the opening of Lonesome Pine Trail.

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE": LOCALE IN THE BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAINS of the Famous Story by the Late John Fox Jr., Which Will Be Commemorated by the Opening of an Actual "Trail" With Ceremonies at Which the Writer's Mother, Sister and Brother Will Be Guests of Honor and in Which Governors of Two States Will Participate.

(Times Wide World Photos.)

Mrs. John Fox Sr., the late writer's mother, and his sister and brother, will be guests of honor, while the Governors of two States will officiate.

In selecting the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia for the locale of his many novels, John Fox Jr.

won popularity immediately, as he had opened a new field of literature. He brought to our view a new type of character, the big, awkward, hulking mountaineer of Virginia, crude in manners but magnificent in manhood, all his lack of polish compensated for by his innate sense of honor, his sturdy self-reliance and his unyielding independence.

John Fox Jr. settled in Big Stone Gap, Virginia, following his graduation from Harvard and his journalistic career on The New York Times. Practically every one of his books dealt with life in this section, and because of this it is fitting that a monument, in the nature of an actual "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," should make his works endure.
